I was asked by a mainland friend about the heart-wreaking Beijing chaos-Wanmiao-Wanwei Blog-Wanwei Reader Network (computer version)

After a few days of visiting the mainland, I boarded a cruise ship in the United States.

Thousands of passengers, at least 80% of them are residents of the United States and Canada, but the diversity of ethnic groups and nationalities is like a resting place of the United Nations. I often stand on the deck of the cruise ship or in the cafe and chat with many passengers. Everyone doesn't know each other, the topics are all over the world, and the mood or mentality is very open. Except for personal privacy, there are no scruples about other conversations.

This reminds me of the long trip in the mainland a week ago. It's really a comparison between two living specimens. This is not the difference between which is high and which is low, which is good and which is bad, but the realistic picture of the two worlds.

Most of the topics of concern of Western tourists are related to their own enjoyment of life. There is little discussion of international events, or political worship with grand narratives and forcing others to appreciate their own views. Some people are interested in our Asian background, but ask carefully in a polite way, and some people take the initiative to open their hearts and past history to us.

My communication with them is casual and frank, and basically there will be no heart-wrenching problems.

But communication with domestic passengers, friends, and even relatives often makes us feel heavy.

As a Chinese who has lived overseas for a long time, comparing the culture, folklore, or independent thinking and open-mindedness of the two places is really worth reminiscing for bloggers like me.

Wandering after "rise"

Every time I step into the country, I will naturally compare it with my past experience. Some people admire the scenery outside, but I pay more attention to people themselves.

The common tendency of the group is very prominent in this land. "Great unification" is not only a slogan, a concept, but also the basis and extension of the way of thinking, which is very different from the spirit of individual independence that I am familiar with, but I will not be surprised. Many people talk endlessly about what they have seen on CCTV and want to test how much you know.

The official interpretation of "The Rise of a Great Power" is rooted in "four self-confidence". Needless to say, no one will take it seriously. However, due to the system, history and cultural traditions, such chat can make many people temporarily forget their situation, which is especially prominent among the elders and those who are not experienced.

Unless we talk very well, I usually be careful to avoid embarrassing situations and don't talk about national affairs. Sometimes praise the scenery outside and change the topic. But wandering and anxiety are always written on the face, which is a common phenomenon I have seen in the mainland.

The anxiety of "falling to the west"

If others know that they are coming from the United States, most of them will inquire or verify the affairs of the United States. "East rises and west falls" is a topic that many people like. The United States is so chaotic. Why don't you come back? How convenient it is here! Talking to acquaintances, this confession is often a standard narrative.

In terms of age, he looks at least ten years younger than most of his classmates. Some female students are more straightforward and will blurt out.

So why is there no anxiety and sadness in a chaotic world?

Most of the time, we will talk about seeing a doctor.

I live in a big city with most Chinese. There are many medical network choices and more doctors to choose from. Theoretically, you have to pay a little federal insurance fee, but the insurance company has more rebates. In 2025, the medical examination flow list (not the bill) I saw exceeded 50,000 US dollars. How much did I personally have?

Many people, including veteran cadres, will ask this question anxiously. My bill is zero, including every time I see a doctor, and there is also zero copay. Many people don't believe it, including the Chinese in the United States. The medical system in the United States is quite complex, and many factors such as age, region and income are related, so we will not discuss it here.

In general, the U.S. economy has always been portrayed as in a "recession".

If you look it up on the Internet, it is not difficult to find that the United States is a large country with stable economic growth among Western countries. It has grown rapidly in the past decade, with an annual per capita income of about 90,000 US dollars, and the distance from other Western countries is still widening.

And China's media has already returned to the Mao era: the United States is rotting day by day...

As for the political disputes, they are often exaggerated by the media. But it is the main feature of the American system. Freedom and democracy are on the table and have existed for 250 years. Basically, she is not a country that tries her best to maintain the face of "great unification" on the surface, but she fights without a bottom line under the stage.

Many foreigners don't know about American football games. Its soul and the culture instilled in the people are the cruel competition and fighting under the rules. The degree of collision is far beyond the imagination of Chinese people. Although there are times when we break the rules, we can always get back on track.

In fact, Americans are much more interested in winning or losing a team than about politics.

"Killing Line" and painkillers

After saying "America is doomed" for many years, many people who came back from the United States did not look like they were poor. They flew around, which was really punfortling.

There is no shortage of knowledgeable and rationally analytical people in the mainland. Many people talk to me, and they can also talk to me. But the prerequisite is to have an open and independent personality, broad knowledge, and extensive reading.

Some people also often read my blog. They may not agree with all my views, but they basically agree with my early descriptions of "Xi Jiajun" (2016), "Dasa Coin" (2017) and the recent two Party Central Committees and post-Xi eras.

Demonizing the United States is a trend in the mainland in recent years.

There is no doubt that the push behind it is the official comprehensive layout and control. Overseas people, especially Chinese in the United States, should learn to stengle their tongues and be careful in their words and deeds when traveling to the mainland and visiting relatives.

The mainland's economy is in decline, real estate prices and stock prices have plummeted, there are many unemployed people, and the internal pressure is great. It is easy for people to find an outlet to vent. Among them, the typical cultural feature is that my bad life is the fault of my neighbors, friends, colleagues or relatives. The emperor can't mess with me. What else can I do?

The frequent "loyalty" murders in recent years can explain this problem.

The "hot topic" of "American Killing Line" should be launched and "hot" under such a background. Some people earn traffic, and some people earn vanity or inferiority and get compensation: there are others who are worse than me.

The narrative of suffering of continental inertia: The sense of poverty and turmoil in history has shaped the extreme desire for "security" and "stability" in human nature, which is often exploited by power and thus transformed into the group's obedience to centralized power.

Due to the many interruptions in history to connect with universal civilization, resulting in the lack of accumulation of "civil consciousness" in human nature, people are more likely to find themselves in grand narratives. Many people are only superstitious about the "central" or nice words, and it is difficult to face the changes in reality and the environment rationally.

Therefore, the "American killing line" is actually a painkiller or placebo for many Chinese people: it turns out that on the other side of the ocean, there are many people who are more miserable than me.

But among the mainland elites, they still care about the killing line in Beijing.

Many people are watching the chaos of the sky and calculating the moment when their boots land. When and how the killing line hanging over the Chinese land will land is concerned about the night dreams of countless people.

The decline and hope of "one"

The Mao era was the peak of the feudal dynasty system and cultural development, because they claimed to have found a more "saving the country" path, that is, using Soviet-Marxist-Leninist things, such as "serving the people", "the rise of a great power" or "whole-process democracy" to disguise personal motivation. Although the logic is confused, many Chinese people still miss or love these dictatorial tricks. They have no choice but to deal with the end of the entangled feudal system and culture, and the increasingly intense trend. Most people can only accept their fate.

Therefore, "determined in one" came out of the cage and wanted to restore the Mao family's feudal dynasty with great fanfare. This is the reason why I saw the beginning of Xi Jiajun as early as 2016.

Will the mainland be in chaos? Will Mingjun appear? In the bottom of many people's hearts, they are still confused and cloudy, which is an inevitable product of the Internet blocking environment. They are eager to know the truth in this closed iron curtain, and overseas tourists are of course the main source of information.

But most of them don't want to hear the "bad news" and don't want to tell their true thoughts to "outsiders". I have encountered such a situation. Several elders quarreled and cursed at each other, but they didn't want to say "the motherland is not good".

But the recent situation in Beijing has made many people unable to calm down.

In the chaos of Zhongnanhai in Beijing, in addition to a Xi Yizun, there is also Zhang Dashuai Mountain Head recently. For the elders who are determined to protect the party, it is all troublesome.

Many people read my article and felt complicated. I have more sincere conversations with some of them.

Because these blog posts seem to tear up the dream of any miracles for China in the future. Frankly speaking, I can provide a little hypocritical comforting words, but it violates the inner logic of thinking and the judgment of common sense.

Therefore, if you are willing to offend these friends, you must also leave real words or feelings.

A few years ago, I mentioned that Xi had lost the "party heart, people's heart and military heart". This statement has now been widely recognized. And inadvertently, it has been verified many times in the mainland.

I met an old friend whose mother was a retired old party member and an old cadre. The focus of their arguments is often Xi Jinping. He didn't understand why his mother began to hate Xi and admire Zhang Youxia. And the latter obviously belonged to the pillar of the rise of the Xi family army. I asked him to look through my article again.

Around January 20, Zhang Youxia and Liu Zhenli were suddenly arrested. On the 24th, it was officially announced. By the 29th, a "secret letter" suspected to have been uploaded on the Internet that Zhang Youxia had prepared in advance. There are many versions of the plot of being caught, and rumors are flying all over the sky.

However, there are one points that are certain: there is no kind of troops in the war zone, and the provincial and ministerial level has expressed their support for the arrest of Zhang Liu, which violates the usual rules of the Communist Party of China; at the same time, videos and news of the mobilization of group troops in various places are full of social media; there are no words such as "resolute" and "certain" in the media.

All the fingers are pointed at Beijing, directly verifying the prospect of chaos of "liquidation" and "civilment".

There are only two possibilities for such a situation: either Zhang Wei was caught or escaped, or the party Central Committee of the elder was powerful.

The PLA newspaper officially announced "Rebirth", which seems to be playing riddles or issuing summons. But with such courage, it is obvious that both sides still have the capital to fight for.

Beijing's "moss" is a carefully planned or a harbinger of the end of the Communist Party of China, which still needs time to test.

Whether I want to "preservation the party" I said two years ago, or to move towards "thorough one", it is still at a crossroads.

Back to the reality of the cruise, mainland tourists on board are always paying attention to the situation in Beijing.

I explained to my friends like this. As long as the formula (system + culture) is not changed and any variable (change of people or policies) is substituted, the result (collapse) is certain. It's just a specific plot, and there will be ups and downs and wavering.

A physicist incisively explained the current chaos of the continent: he introduced systematics theory, cybernetics and thermodynamic logic. He looks at whether the feedback loop of the system is broken, and looks at the balance formula of energy input (foreign exchange, population dividend) and entropy increase (stabilization, debt). This is the perspective of dissecting social civilization as a "dissipative structure".

The current predicament is not only the tragedy of Xi alone, but also the "unrestrained system" has to go to a tragic moment of breakup due to the lack of "freedom and openness" elements in genes when facing the challenge of modernization.

After more than 70 years of brainwashing and transformation, human nature has been kidnapped by the burden of system, culture and history. It is not because people are bad that the system is bad, but because of the old and rottenness of the system and culture, which stimulates and solidifies the dark, obedient, mediocre, or cunning, insidious, deceptive and scoundrel aspects of human nature.

As long as you choose "determined" and "stifling freedom", the society will inevitably trigger the failure of information feedback and error correction mechanisms. Therefore, the closed system is bound to increase entropy. Without the input of external high-quality information (truth, truth, true technology, true logic), no matter how much internal energy (organizations, party members, soldiers, financial funds) is, it will only be consumed in the propaganda ocean of ineffective internal consumption, forgit and deception.

Centralization (for security) → exclusion (for the unification of ideas) → decision-making mistakes (due to lack of feedback) → larger-scale remediation and scattering of money (in order to save face) → international isolation (because of contrary to common sense) → towards the "axis of evil" (because there is no way out). In the end, we can only roll up our sleeves and move towards the chaos of the world.

Only when the world is in chaos will the world be ruled? Maybe it's really the fate of "Chinese civilization".
